

KORPS FELDT

(INFANTRY COMPANY)

The Reichwald was a dense forest running into Germany. The Allied planners had absolutely no idea whatsoever as to the extent of German forces and reserves that could come boiling out of the Reichwald and over the Groesbeek Heights. Allied planners truly planned for the worst case scenario. The total armored complement for Korps Feldt ended up being just five gun-armed half-tracked and three armoured cars. Nevertheless, the rough mix of German forces still fought bitterly to upset the Allied plans and defeat the combined Allied forces.
