

KAMPFGRUPPE HARZER

(INFANTRY COMPANY)

The German command perceived the drop of the Polish drop near Driel on September 21 as an attempt to cut "Hell's Highway" south of Arnhem, cutting off all German troops still north of Nijmegen. The German reaction was swift and decisive. SS-LTC Walther Harzer committed all of his reserves, 'stand-by' rear echelon units, into a Sperrverband (blocking formation) to stop the Polish cold. Over the next few days further reserves rushed into the battle; SS infantry, Heavy anti-aircraft units, massive artillery, Tigers and King Tigers defeated the allied offensive.
